Forest Peoples

“Peoples who live in
and have customary rights to their forests and have developed ways of life and traditional knowledge that are attuned to their
forest
environments.”

Sa Pa, Vietnam

of which 200 million are indigenous peoples*

Relevant (legal and ethical) considerations:

1. Priority in time with respect the occupation and use of a specific territory
2. The voluntary perpetuation of cultural distinctiveness (may include language, social organization, religion and spiritual values, modes of production, laws and institutions).
3. Self-identification, as well as recognition by other groups, or by State authorities, as a distinct collective, and;
4. An experience of subjugation, exclusion or discrimination, whether or not these conditions persist.

5

Brazil's 1988 Constitution: Indigenous peoples are entitled to the permanent possession of the lands they traditionally occupy

BUT REMEMBER:

not all forest-dependent peoples
are indigenous peoples

14

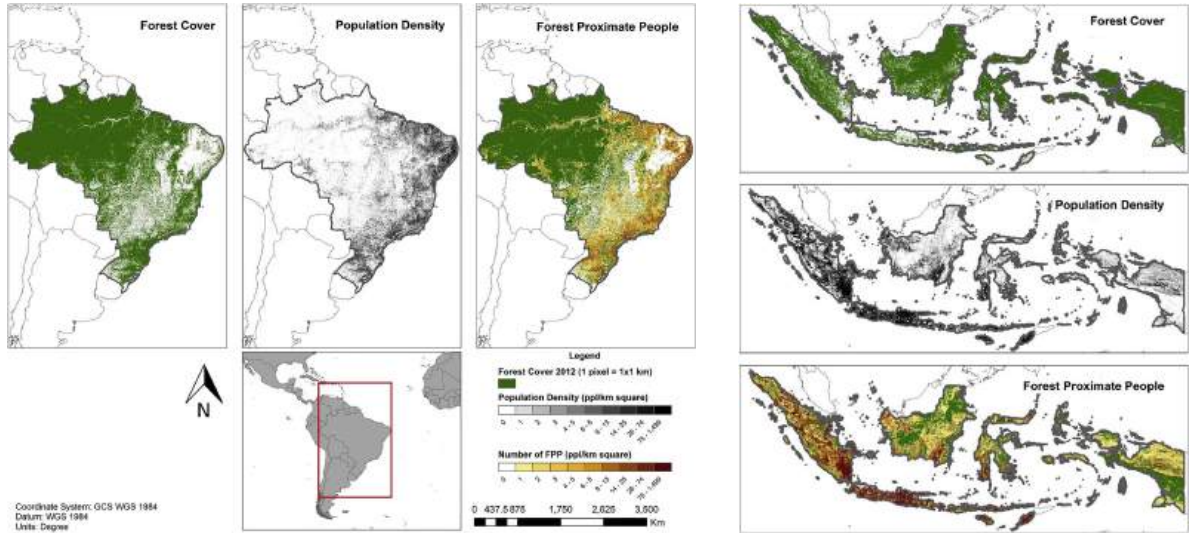

15

The degree to which forests support human livelihoods
and
the degree to which humans affect forests depends in part on how close people are to forests.

16

Globally: 1.6 billion rural people live within 5 km of a forest.
64.5% (just over 1 bi) are in tropical countries

Move beyond "Forest-dependent People" to "Forest-proximate people"
